

SELENITE

WHAT IS SELENITE?

This beautiful crystal is called Selenite, after the Greek word 'Selene' meaning, 'the moon'. It is often transparent or translucent and colourless. If you find your Selenite opaque or with a colour, it's caused by the presence of other minerals or inclusions.

The crystals come in various forms but are more commonly found as columnar, tabular or reticular and will often appear as layers of mica-like, glass sheets. This is the most common form of Selenite that is used for lamps, wands and towers.

These crystals are very soft, meaning they are very fragile and must be handled with care.

One of the most healing crystals available!!

Choose from a great range of Selenite products, including beautiful Selenite Lamps that come in a variety of sizes. All lamps are supplied with a globe and Certified Australian Standard Electrical cord.
